Mr. Milton Craven, a sergeant for the union army for the U.S. civil war, gave practically all of his time while a park trustee of evergreen park in 1900. He believed that a park should be a place for recreation. He planted flowers, a wide variety of shrubs including mountain laurel, poplar, evergreen and oak trees. Sergeant Craven has left an enduring monument to his memory. The people of Kane will long remember this quiet, public-spirited hero of the Civil War who lost an arm in defense of his country at the battle of the wilderness, and who by his zeal and devotion to the public welfare, made in evergreen park a notable contribution to the beauty and happiness of the community.
